In a simpler view, corporate entrepreneurship can also be considered a means of organizational renewal. For in addition to its focus on innovation, there also exists an equal drive toward venturing. These two work in unison as the company undertakes innovations across the entire organizational spectrum, from product and process to technology and administration. In addition, venturing is a primary component in the process, pushing larger companies to enhance their overall competitiveness in ...

Corporate Entrepreneurship and its Importance in Large Companies for business, corporate entrepreneurship (CE) is particularly important. CE embodies one of the major vehicles for corporate innovation, revitalization, and retrenchment. It preserves and even grows jobs and markets, and provides an aid to limiting or channeling some of the volatility in the population of businesses. At this point in the history of entrepreneurship and business generally, CE is coming off of a slump in mindshare, and represents one of the areas we believe is ripe for a ...
